

STOLE A BIG SWAG

Cracksmen Neatly Loot a Bank at Wilton, Iowa.

LEAVING NO CLUE BEHIND THEM

They Blow Open the Doors of the Vault With Dynamite, Secure $4000 and Escape.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Jan. 28.—Three safe blowers made a raid on the Union bank of Wilton, Ia., west of this city, Tuesday night, and secured about $4,000 in paper and coin. Wilton is a town of about 1,500 sober-minded people, 17 miles west of Davenport, and the Union bank is a flourishing little financial institution. It is patronized not only by the local merchants but by stock buyers for miles around. Tuesday it had $7,000 in currency, but during the day a part of this was paid out on account of grain shipments. This is the reason the bankers do not lose more than they do.

The Clerk Discovered. When the clerk went to the bank Wednesday morning he discovered that the front door had been pried open with a crowbar. Gaining entrance he saw the vault open. Its lock had been drilled and smashed to pieces. On the floor was a crowbar, a big hammer, a wrench, a screw plate and other articles, showing that burglars had been having a lively time of it. There was nothing valuable in the vault.

They Used Dynamite. Closer examination showed that dynamite was the explosive used to blow the safe open. This was of St. Louis build and supposed to be burglar-proof. The safe weighed 3,500 pounds. The Union bank is loser to the extent of $4,000 over $4,000. Of this amount $2,000 is in paper, $100 in gold and about $300 in silver. The officials of the bank and the people of Wilton generally are at a loss for clues, although the conductor of a train which came into Davenport Wednesday morning says that three suspicious men boarded his train at the station this side of Wilton.

THE LAMB-GOURD OF MAMERS

In a book called "The Duke of Holstein's Travels Into Persia and Muscovy," published in 1698, there is an account of a curious vine product called the "lamb-gourd," which runs as follows: "In the north of the island of Samara, Russia, there grows a gourd which closely resembles a lamb in all its members. It changes places in growing as far as the stalk will reach, and where-soever it turns the grass withers and dies. This change of the ground-plant the Muscovites call 'feeding'; they further say that when it ripens the stalk withers, and that the outward rind of the gourd is then covered with a sort of wool, which they use instead of fur." Scalliger also makes mention of the lamb-gourd, and says that it grows until the grass falls and that it then dies for want of nourishment. He also says that the wolf is the only animal that will feed upon it.

My dear young friend, remember this in selecting a wife: Beware of the horse woman. Why, do you ask? Because a horse woman is likely to be a nagging wife. Am I joking or am I serious? Both, young man; both. Laugh, if you wish, but as the schoolmaster said to the boy when he gave him four hundred lines of Caesar to translate, don't forget the lesson.

The man without a country lives in pitiable estate, but he isn't in it for friendliness with the man who is learning to play the cornet.
